Our world is beautiful it has natural resources and provides us with a home. Caring for it is a good idea. Reducing, reusing, and recycling are some ways that we can keep it like that. You can reduce by not adding to the landfill. You can reuse water and recycle paper.

Reducing the trash we put in the landfill is a great way to help the environment. There will be less garbage and less toxic chemicals through the air.

✓ (You can reduce the amounts of food packaging.)

Reusing water is a good thing to do. By doing that you can save the animals and save the water so it won't go to waste.

Recycling paper can help us because paper comes from trees and trees produce oxygen for us to breathe. It can also cut down on pollution because in order to make paper it has to go through many steps in a factory.

You can now see that reducing, reusing, and recycling is a very easy and simple thing to do to save our world and make it a better place for future generations.
