1. Overview

1.1 Introduction

California is in the midst of a housing shortage crisis in which communities throughout the State are challenged with accommodating their fair share of housing production. Coupled with an ever-increasing population, the housing shortage is resulting in unprecedented rises in the cost of rent and home prices. The housing shortage has prompted California to enact new laws requiring cities and counties to streamline housing development applications and remove potential barriers to housing production.

Along with the multitude of California laws aimed at increasing affordable housing stock, the housing crisis has prompted many communities to find their own innovative solutions. Through its Zoning Ordinance and residential development standards, the City of Hayward has a unique opportunity to revisit existing regulations that can act as barriers to housing development and create new regulations that increase housing stock while further enhancing the City's character.

1.2 The Project

In February 2022, the City of Hayward initiated a technical update to the City's Zoning Ordinance to support residential development. This update, known as the "Hayward Residential Design Study," focuses on developing objective standards for residential development and targeted zoning amendments to ensure consistency between the Hayward 2040 General Plan and Zoning Ordinance.

The City's objectives for the Hayward Residential Design Study are as follows:

- Create a simple and predictable review process for residential development that meets the City's goals for residential development and creates greater certainty for the development community.
- Implement best practices which promote the balanced, and diverse housing options for persons of all income levels and housing needs.
- Ensure new residential development is of high quality by developing and adopting residential development design standards that are financially feasible, flexible, practical, and predictable.
- Adopt and enforce citywide residential design standards that reflect the needs and desires of the community while adhering to recent changes in State housing law.

1.3 This Report

To gain a better understanding of the community priorities, existing conditions, and potential General Plan and Zoning Ordinance discrepancies, the Project Team conducted extensive background research. As part of the background research, a citywide analysis of the City's existing land use designations was conducted. This analysis aimed to identify single-family zoned parcels that have an underlying General Plan land use designation that allows for or requires higher density development than what is currently allowed by the parcel's zoning district. It should be noted that this analysis was limited to those parcels currently within the City Limits (i.e., excludes unincorporated Alameda County designated land within the City's Planning Area).

This report summarizes the results from the land use analysis and provides discussion on the following:

01

General Plan & Zoning

The difference between zoning regulations and general plans and the important role they play in guiding development.

02

State Law Changes

A summary of SB 9 California Housing Opportunity and More Efficiency (HOME) Act and its impact on single-family residential zoned parcels.

03

Land Use Analysis

The identification of single-family zoned parcels that are inconsistent with the General Plan.

04

Zoning Strategies

Next steps the City will take to ensure all identified parcels and zoning districts comply with the underlying General Plan land use designation.

Please note...

The analysis conducted for this report focused on identifying single-family zoning districts that have an inconsistent underlying residential General Plan land use designation. However, through this analysis additional residential zoning districts that have an inconsistent non-residential General Plan land use designation were identified. While the identification of these inconsistencies is not within the purview of this report and the overall Hayward Residential Design Study project, the City documented these findings and will address them accordingly as part of a separate Zoning Ordinance update process.

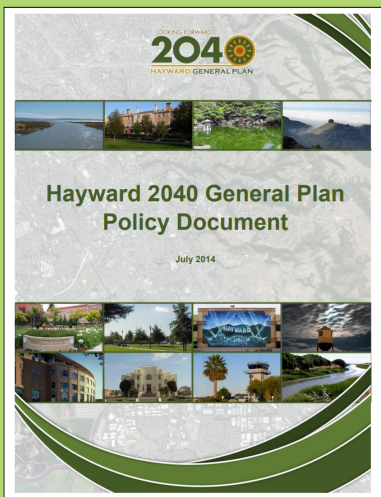

2. General Plan Vs. Zoning Regulations

2.1 What is a General Plan?

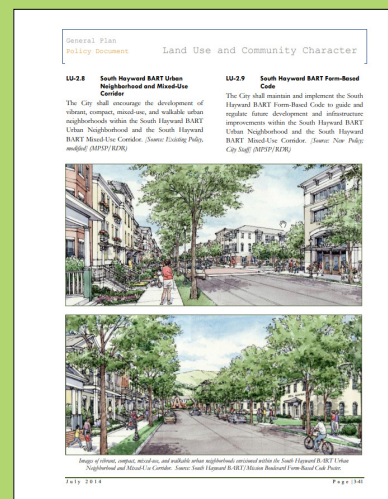

The State mandates that every city and county adopt a general plan to guide future growth and development. A general plan serves as a jurisdiction’s “constitution” or “blueprint” for future decisions concerning a variety of issues including land use, housing, mobility, health, safety, and resource conservation. A general plan represents the community’s aspiration for its future and expresses the community’s development and resource management goals. The general plan contains the goals and policies upon which the City Council, the Planning Commission, and City staff will base their land use and natural resource decisions.

A general plan has four defining features:

- General. Provides general policy guidelines for future growth and development.
- Long-Range. Provides guidance for achieving a future envisioned 20 or more years into the future.
- Comprehensive. Addresses a range of topics, including land use, transportation, housing, economic development, infrastructure, public safety, recreation, and natural resources.
- Integrated and Coherent. Provides assumptions and projections to assess future demands for housing, employment, and public services. Provides policies and implementation programs that enable citizens to understand the vision of the city and how policies will be implemented.

General plans are typically updated every 10 to 20 years to respond to the changing needs of the community and changes in State law. The current City of Hayward General Plan was adopted July 2014 and has a planning horizon out to 2040.

2.2 What is Zoning?

While a general plan sets forth a wide-ranging and long-term vision for the City, zoning regulations specify how each individual property can be used to achieve that vision. Zoning is the body of rules and regulations that control what is built on the ground, as well as what uses may occupy structures and sites. Zoning determines the form and character of development, such as the size and height of structures, and includes provisions to ensure that new development and uses will fit into existing neighborhoods. Zoning regulations deal with two basic concerns:

Minimize Impacts
 How to minimize the adverse impacts that the use of one property can have on a neighboring property.

Development Pasterns
 How to encourage optimal development patterns and activities within a community, as expressed in planning policies.

What Zoning CAN Do

- Use Regulations. Zoning specifies what uses are allowed, what uses are required to meet specified standards, and what uses are prohibited. Zoning determines the appropriate mix of compatible uses, as well as how intense these uses can be.
- Development Standards. Zoning reflects the desired physical character of the community in development standards that control height and bulk of structures, street front and architectural character, location of parking and driveways, “buffering” of uses, and landscape needs.
- Performance Standards. Zoning often includes standards that control the “performance” of uses to ensure land use compatibility between new and existing neighborhoods or uses. Performance standards address items such as noise, glare, vibration, and stormwater runoff.
- Predictability. Zoning provide neighbors with assurance of what land uses are allowed and to what scale they may be developed. Applicants and City staff also benefit since the need for case-by-case discretionary review of development applications is reduced.

What Zoning CANNOT Do

- Regulate Free Market. Zoning cannot create a market for new development. However, it can create opportunities in the real estate market by removing barriers and offering incentives for desirable uses.
- Establish Land Use Policy. Zoning is a tool for implementing land use policy, not setting it. Zoning takes direction from the General Plan and other established land use plans.

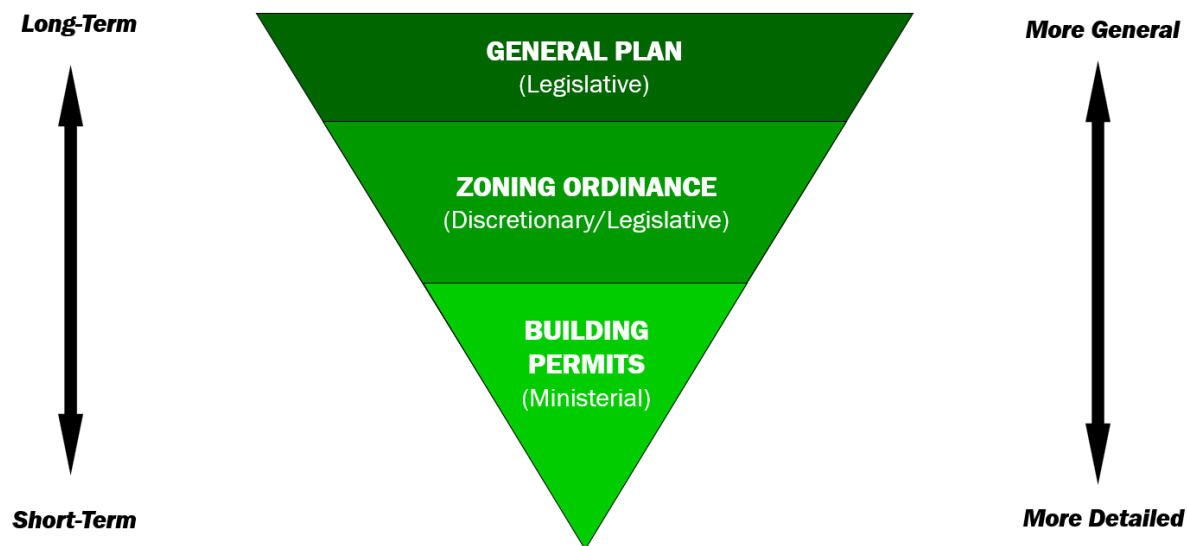

Did you know?

Zoning is used to implement the community goals expressed in a General Plan and other land use plan documents. There are things that zoning cannot do since zoning is limited in some respects by State and Federal law and legal precedent. However, issues not addressed in zoning are usually addressed by other planning tools, such as specific plans.

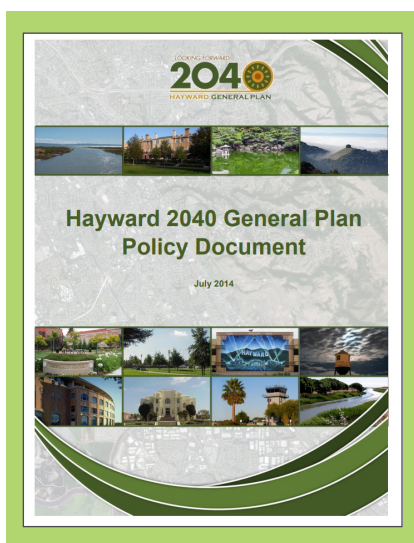

2.3 General Plan and Zoning Consistency

Under State law, all planning documents maintained, prepared, or approved by a community, must be consistent with that community's general plan. This relationship is illustrated in Figure 2.1. For land use decisions, zoning is the key tool used to implement a general plan. Zoning supports implementation of the general plan and, therefore, must be consistent with the general plan. Upon adoption of an updated general plan, a community may need to amend the existing zoning regulations and zoning map to ensure consistency with the general plan. Development projects must not only meet the specific requirements of the zoning regulations, but also the broader policies set forth in the general plan.

3. SB 9 HOME Act

The California Housing Opportunity and More Efficiency (HOME) Act (Senate Bill 9) was approved in August 2021, and signed into law by Governor Newsom on September 16, 2021. This legislative bill is intended to help alleviate the affordable housing crisis by easing land use regulations and California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) barriers to increase density and streamline the production of residential housing development statewide.

In short, SB 9 streamlines the process for property owners to subdivide an existing single-family residential parcel to create a duplex and/or allow for new infill construction. Under the HOME Act, communities are required to create a ministerial approval process for lot splits and duplex construction on parcels zoned for single-family uses, if the project meets specified requirements. For example, property owners cannot demolish deed-restricted affordable housing or housing in an historic district. According to the Act, local governments may impose objective standards, unless the standards preclude the construction of two 800 square foot units or a lot split. Local agencies may require up to one parking space per unit, unless the parcel is within a half mile of a major transit stop or high-quality transit corridor (similar to ADU requirements). Housing created pursuant to these provisions cannot be rented for terms shorter than 30 days (no vacation rentals). Applicants for lot splits must sign an affidavit declaring their intent to occupy one of the lots for at least three years, unless the applicant is a community land trust or nonprofit. Local agencies may deny an application for a duplex development or lot split if it makes written findings of an adverse impact on public health, safety, or the physical environment. The Act also requires local governments to identify the number of residential dwelling units constructed pursuant to Act's provisions in their Housing Element Annual Progress Report. See Figure 3-1 for a SB 9 (HOME Act) overview.

Point of clarification...

It is important to note that SB 9 does not alleviate the General Plan and Zoning Ordinance inconsistencies identified in this Report. SB 9 is merely a process by which applicants can apply for streamlined lot splits and duplex construction in single-family zones. SB 9 does not alter the maximum and minimum densities established in the City of Hayward General Plan or the minimum and maximum lot sizes established in the Zoning Ordinance.

SENATE BILL 9 (SB 9): AN OVERVIEW

WHAT IT IS AND HOW IT IMPACTS RESIDENTIAL LAND USE

Senate Bill 9 (SB 9) is a new California State Law taking effect January 1, 2022.

Similar to previous state legislation on Accessory Dwelling Units (ADUs), SB 9 overrides existing density limits in single-family zones. SB 9 is intended to support increased supply of starter, modestly priced homes by encouraging building of smaller houses on small lots.

SB 9 WAIVES DISCRETIONARY REVIEW AND PUBLIC HEARINGS FOR:

BUILDING TWO HOMES ON A PARCEL IN A SINGLE-FAMILY ZONE

SUBDIVIDING A LOT INTO TWO THAT CAN BE SMALLER THAN REQUIRED MIN. SIZE

Used together, this allows 4 HOMES where 1 was allowed before.

SB 9 CAN BE USED TO: Add new homes to existing parcel • Divide existing house into multiple units • Divide parcel and add homes

WHAT IT CAN MEAN FOR DEVELOPMENT OF NEW HOMES

Illustrations are based on a preliminary analysis of the law. Details are subject to change and are for informational purposes only.

	VACANT LOT	LOT WITH SINGLE-FAMILY HOME	LOT WITH NONCONFORMING DUPLEX*	LOT WITH SINGLE-FAMILY HOME AND AN ADU
BEFORE	A1  No units	B1  1 unit	C1  Up to 2 units (nonconforming)	D1  1 unit + 1 ADU/JADU
ADD UNITS, NO LOT SPLIT	A2  Up to 2 units + 2 ADUs/JADUs	B2  Up to 2 units + 2 ADUs/JADUs	C2  No additional units	D2  Can add 1 addtl. unit + 1 ADU/JADU
ADD UNITS, NO LOT SPLIT	A3  Up to 4 total units	B3  Up to 4 total units	C3  Up to 4 total units	D3  Up to 4 total units

*Legally constructed but not currently permitted. Check your local ordinance for nonconforming use policies.

USING SB 9 WITHOUT A LOT SPLIT:

- Without a lot split, SB 9 does not limit the number of ADUs or JADUs (B2, D2) - but other laws might.
- SB 9 could be interpreted to allow 2 new units beyond an existing unit (up to 3 units/lot, plus any allowed ADUs/JADUs).

USING SB 9 WITH A LOT SPLIT:

- SB 9 does not require jurisdictions to approve more than 4 units total, including any ADUs/JADUs.

SINGLE-UNIT DEVELOPMENTS

SB 9 can be used to develop single units - but projects must comply with all SB 9 requirements.

4. Land Use Analysis

To identify potential land use conflicts between the Hayward 2040 General Plan and Zoning Ordinance, the Project Team used location- and geo-analytics to evaluate the City’s existing land use data. Through this process, the Project Team identified single-family zoned parcels that have an inconsistent underlying General Plan land use designation.

The results of this land use analysis are summarized in this section. Raw data results from the land use analysis are included in Appendix A and the next steps to remedy the discrepancies identified in this section are discussed in Section 5 of this report.

4.1 Assumptions & Methodology

For the purpose of this report, “single-family” zoned parcels are those parcels zoned Single-Family Residential District (RS) and all associated subdistricts and combining B Districts thereof. These parcels include the following zoning designations:

- RS
- RSB4
- RSB6
- RSB8
- RSB10
- RSB20
- RSB40

Currently, there are 20,791 parcels (4,567 acres) zoned for exclusively single-family residential development.

4.2 Targeted Diagnosis

4.2.1 Overview Summary

Out of the 20,791 single-family zoned parcels in the city, 864 parcels (192.6 acres) are inconsistent with their underlying residential General Plan land use designation. Table 4-1 provides an overview of the residential land use designation discrepancies and identifies the total number of single-family zoned acres and parcels that are currently inconsistent with the underlying residential General Plan land use designation. A detailed discussion of these inconsistencies is provided in this section.

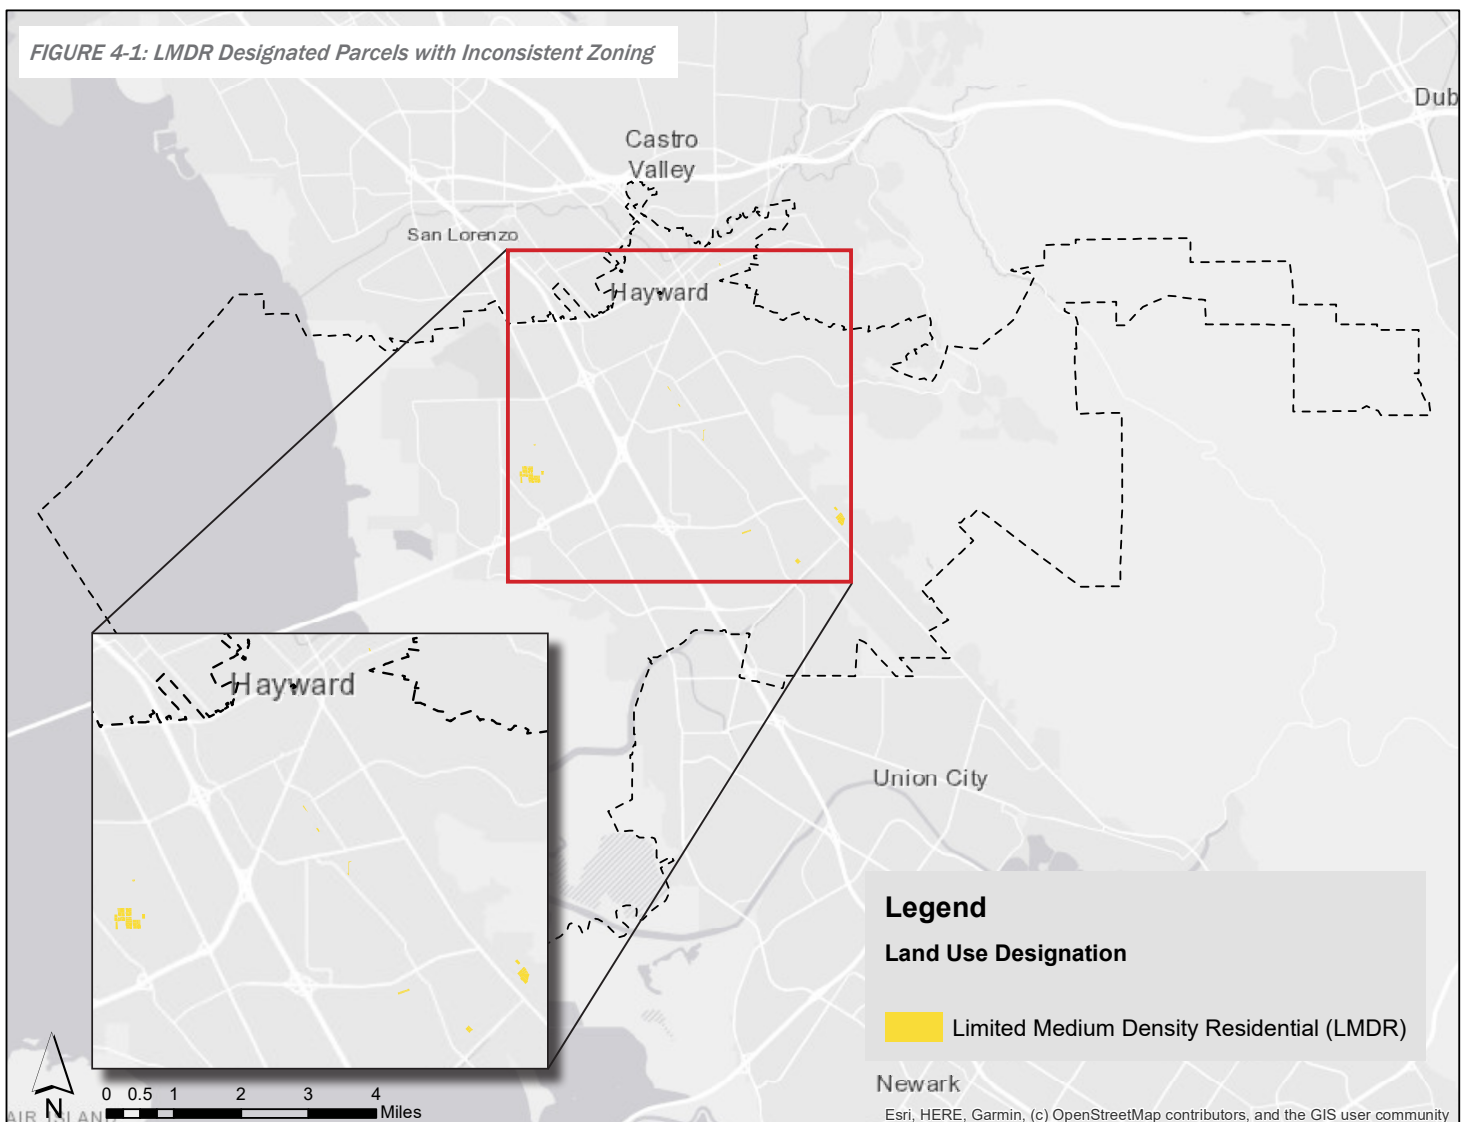

TABLE 4-1: Residential Land Use Designation Discrepancy

General Plan Land Use Designations		Allowed Density (dwelling units per acre)		Existing Citywide Total (excluding County designated parcels)		Zoning Discrepancy Totals
		Minimum Density	Maximum Density	Parcels	Acres	Inconsistent Parcels	Percent of Existing Citywide Total	Inconsistent Acres	Percent of Existing Citywide Total
LMDR	Limited Medium Density Residential	8.7	12	2,053	326	85	1.7%	29	9%
MDR	Medium Density Residential	8.7	17.4	5,860	934	723	12%	151	16%
HDR	High-Density Residential	17.4	34.8	3,934	436	8	<1%	5.6	1%
CHDR	Commercial High Density Residential	n/a	34.8	418	104	48	11%	7	7%
Total						864		192.6

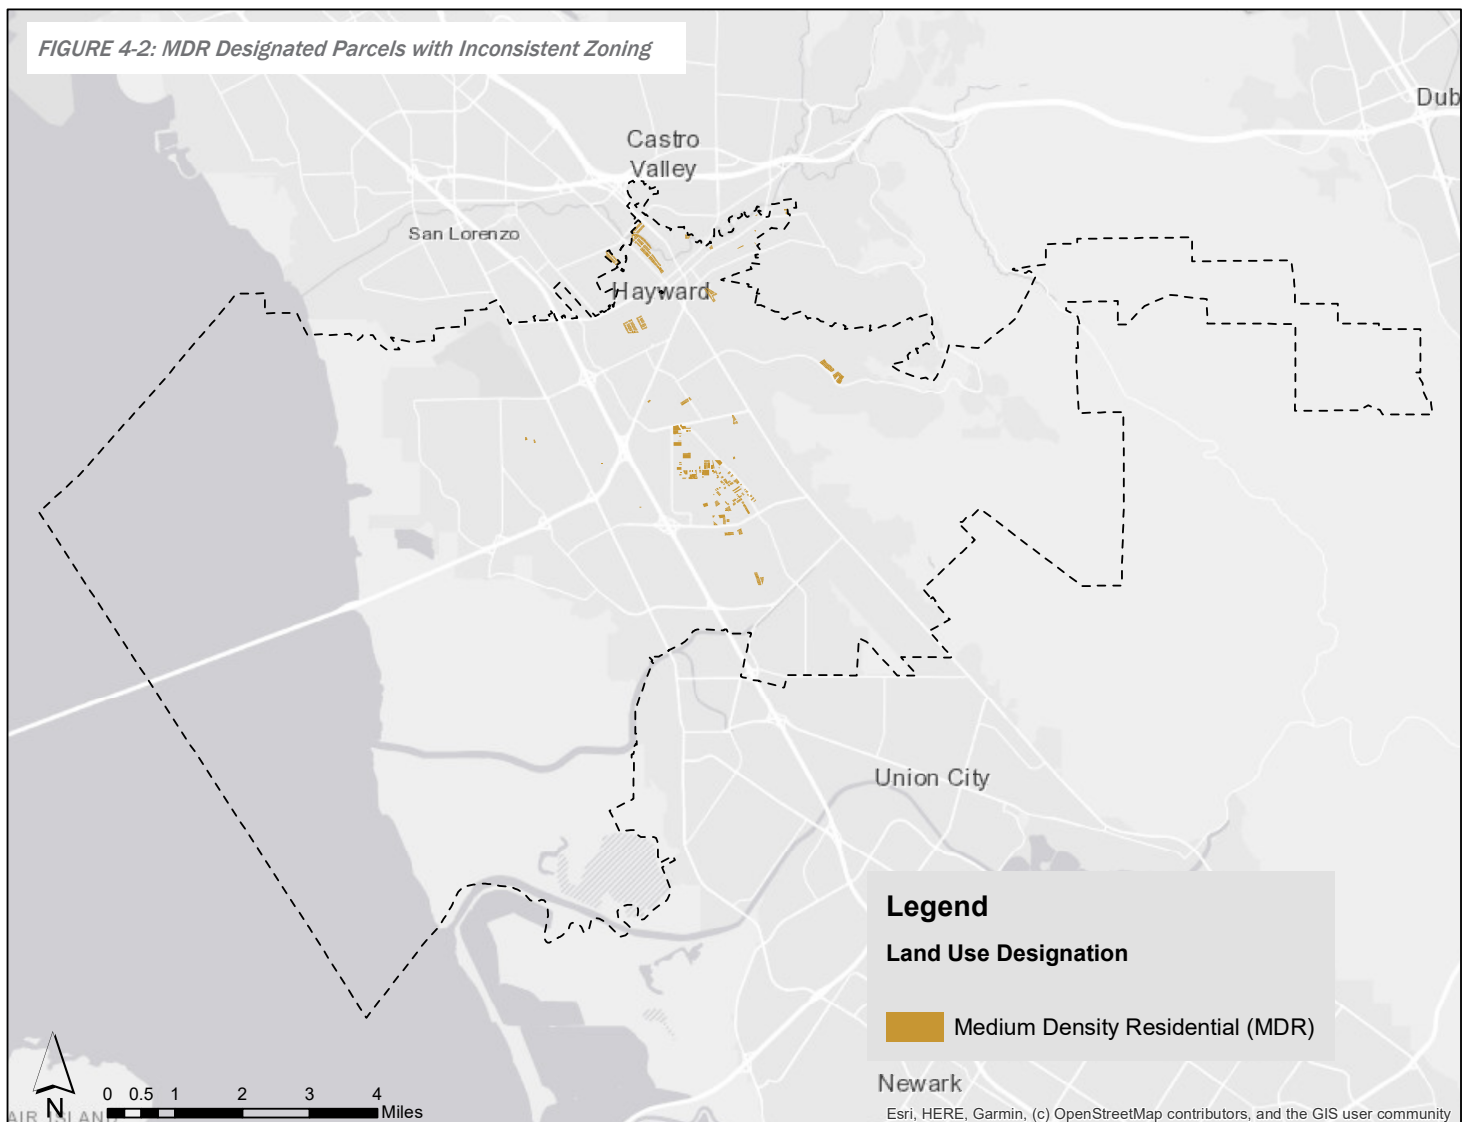

4.2.2 Limited Medium Density Residential (LMDR)

There are currently 2,053 parcels (326 acres) designated as Limited Medium Density Residential (LMDR) in the 2040 General Plan. Of these, 85 parcels (29 acres) are identified as being inconsistent with the density requirements established by the underlying LMDR land use designation. The LMDR land use designation requires a minimum residential density of 8.7 dwelling units per acre (du/ac) and a maximum residential density of 12 du/ac. Per this established residential density range, any single-family zoned parcel larger than 5,000 square feet (sq. ft.) ($43,560 \text{ sq. ft.} \div 8.7 \text{ du/ac}$) or smaller than 3,630 sq. ft. ($43,560 \text{ sq. ft.} \div 12 \text{ du/ac}$) would not comply with the established LMDR density range. Furthermore, any single-family zone that requires a minimum lot size larger than 5,000 sq. ft. (i.e., RSB3.5, RSB6, RSB10, RSB20) or smaller than 3,630 sq. ft. are inconsistent with the LMDR land use designation. See Figure 4-1 (LMDR Designated Parcels with Inconsistent Zoning).

4.2.3 Medium Density Residential (MDR)

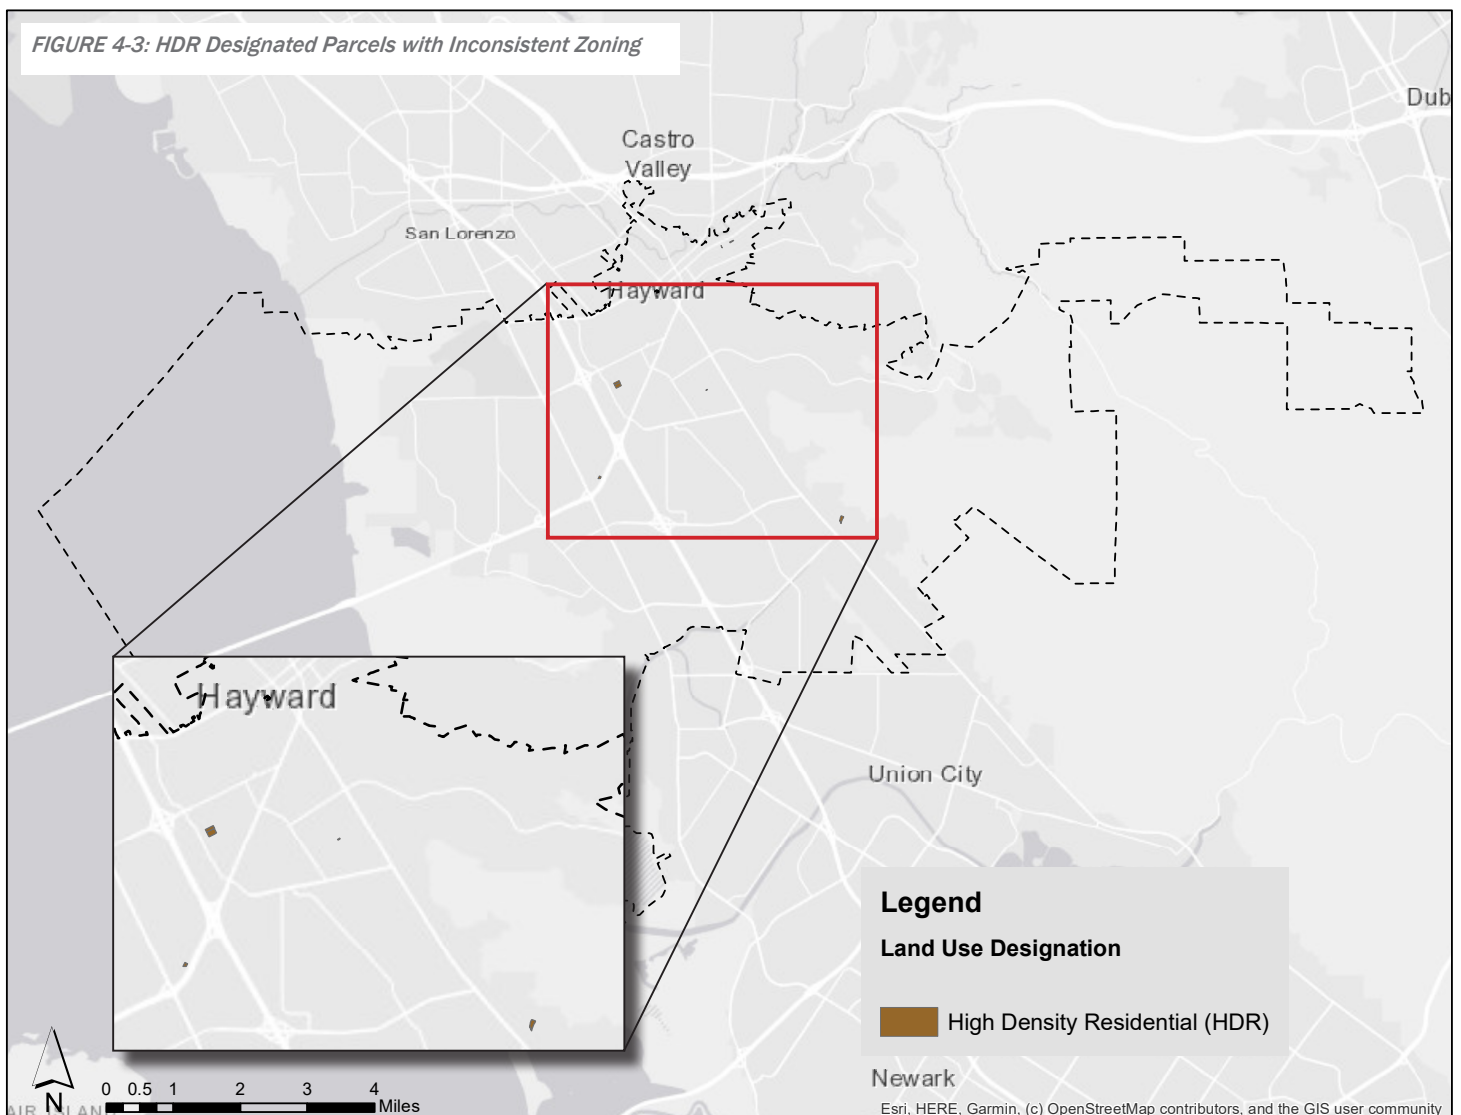

There are currently 5,860 parcels (934 acres) designated as Medium Density Residential (MDR) in the 2040 General Plan. Of these, 723 parcels (151 acres) are identified as being inconsistent with the density requirements established by the underlying MDR land use designation. The MDR land use designation requires a minimum residential density of 8.7 dwelling units per acre (du/ac) and a maximum residential density of 17.4 du/ac. Per this General Plan established residential density range, any single-family zoned parcel larger than 5,000 square feet (sq. ft.) ($43,560 \text{ sq. ft.} \div 8.7 \text{ du/ac}$) or smaller than 2,500 sq. ft. ($43,560 \text{ sq. ft.} \div 17.4 \text{ du/ac}$) would not comply with the established MDR density range. Furthermore, any single-family zone that requires a minimum lot size larger than 5,000 sq. ft. (i.e., RSB3.5, RSB6, RSB10, RSB20) or smaller than 2,500 sq. ft. are inconsistent with the MDR land use designation. See Figure 4-2 (MDR Designated Parcels with Inconsistent Zoning).

4.2.4 High Density Residential (HDR)

There are currently 3,934 parcels (436 acres) designated as High Density Residential (HDR) in the 2040 General Plan. Of this total, eight single-family zoned parcels (5.6 acres) are identified as being inconsistent with the underlying HDR General Plan land use designation. These single-family zones include: RS and RSB10. This inconsistency is a direct result of there being a discrepancy between allowed land uses in the single-family zoning district and the General Plan land use designation. Namely, the HDR land use designation allows for multi-family residences, whereas the single-family zones do not allow multi-family residences.

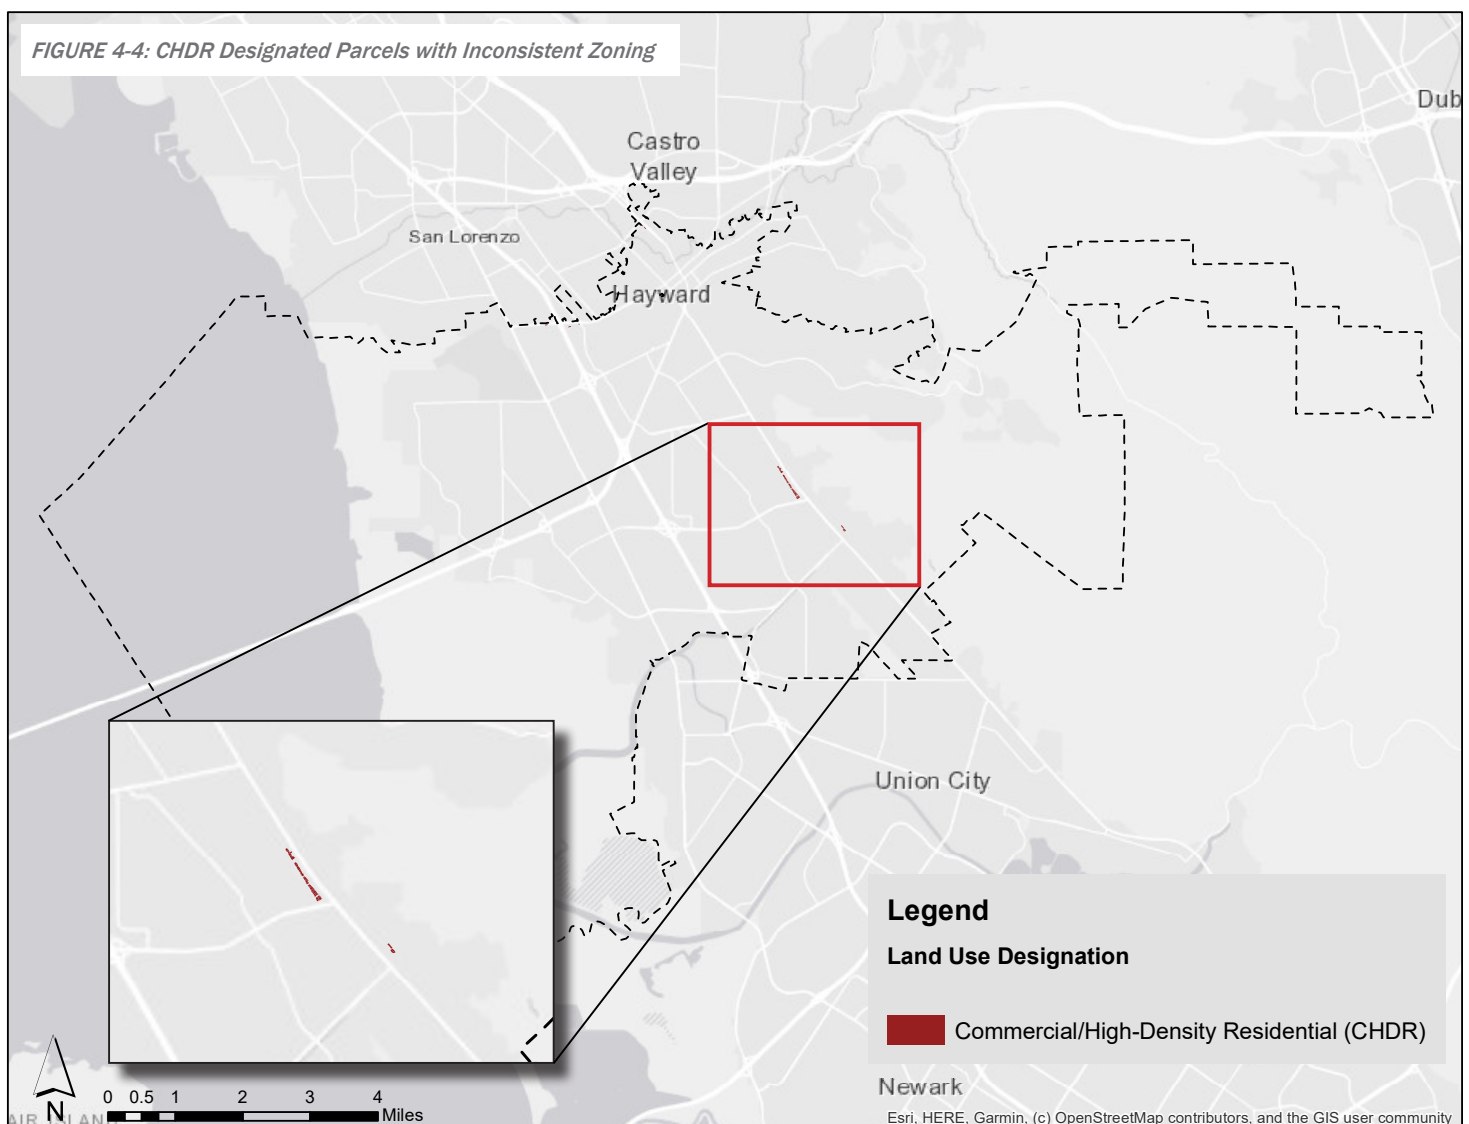

In addition to the discrepancy between the General Plan land use designation and zoning district, the eight identified single-family zoned parcels are also inconsistent with the density requirements established by the underlying HDR land use designation. The HDR land use designation requires a minimum residential density of 17.4 dwelling units per acre (du/ac) and a maximum residential density of 34.8 du/ac. Per this General Plan established residential density range, any single-family zoned parcel larger than 2,500 square feet (sq. ft.) ($43,560 \text{ sq. ft.} \div 17.4 \text{ du/ac}$) or smaller than 1,250 sq. ft. ($43,560 \text{ sq. ft.} \div 34.8 \text{ du/ac}$) would not comply with the established HDR density range. Furthermore, any single-family zone that requires a minimum lot size larger than 2,500 sq. ft. (i.e., RSB3.5, RSB6, RSB10, RSB20) or smaller than 1,250 sq. ft. are inconsistent with the HDR land use designation. See Figure 4-3 (HDR Designated Parcels with Inconsistent Zoning).

4.2.5 Commercial/High-Density Residential (CHDR)

There are currently 418 parcels (104 acres) designated as Commercial/High-Density Residential (CHDR) in the 2040 General Plan. Of this total, 48 single-family zoned parcels (seven acres) are identified as being inconsistent with the underlying CHDR General Plan land use designation. These single-family zones include: RS and RSB10. This inconsistency is a direct result of there being a discrepancy between allowed land uses in the single-family zoning district and the General Plan land use designation. Namely, the CHDR land use designation allows for multi-family residences, whereas the single-family zones do not allow multi-family residences.

There are currently no density inconsistencies between the single-family zones and the CHDR designation. The CHDR land use designation does not require a minimum residential density. However, the designation does have a maximum residential density of 34.8 du/ac. Per this General Plan established density range, any single-family zoned parcel that is at least 1,250 square feet (sq. ft.) ($43,560 \text{ sq. ft.} \div 34.8 \text{ du/ac}$) would be consistent with the density range established by the CHDR designation. See Figure 4-4 (CHDR Designated Parcels with Inconsistent Zoning).

5. Next Steps

To ensure consistency with the Hayward 2040 General Plan, this report will be the basis for future amendments to the Zoning Ordinance. The findings in this report will be used to prepare a Zoning Consistency Recommendation Report that introduces different approaches to bringing the City's single-family zoned properties into compliance with their underlying General Plan land use designations. These approaches may include rezoning, upzoning, creation of one or more zoning overlays, and other strategies.
