As a mother of a school-aged daughter and a housing policy advocate, I am running for Hayward City Council to advance economic and housing rights for all residents. My background in urban planning and advocacy for community development and affordable housing makes me the asset greatly needed on Council. I'm running a campaign entirely free from corporate contributions to be directly accountable to the people.

Hayward can be a leader in good paying jobs for residents, quality public education, and affordable housing. Our city is filled with hardworking, resilient, and innovative residents, but we must expand our social safety nets. Strategically addressing COVID-19 impacts will be crucial in the coming months, and my focus will be to implement policies to provide adequate support for all.

Housing and economic rights are personal for me, I've struggled with economic and housing insecurity as a working single-parent. This is why I've dedicated my life to fighting the housing crisis and to making our community a place where all can live full and dignified lives.

I'm proud to be endorsed by the Alameda Building and Construction Trades Council and the Professional and Technical Engineers Local 21. I now humbly ask for your vote. Together, let's build a Hayward that is for all.
