

---

Name: Son Nguyen

Amid the COVID-19 pandemic, we must coordinate with Federal and State governments to plan for more coronavirus testing, mandatory vaccinations, and proper treatment so that we can be well prepared for the future. We must pay more attention to the at-risk groups, such as, the elderly, people with underlying illnesses, and the disenfranchised. We must support working families by incentivizing existing and new businesses to safely open and operate, creating a business friendly community. We must also ensure the safety and security of our communities by providing additional training and outreach to our law enforcement; our communities need more public safety programs.

Adhering to CDC and county safety guidelines, schools should also be required to implement temperature screenings, daily classroom sanitization, smaller classroom sizes, and improving contact tracing. Schools should actively encourage the involvement from the PTA and parent volunteers to minimize exposure and spread of illnesses. We should re-open our schools as quickly as possible so that working parents can provide for their families and to encourage a more nurturing environment for children's education.

The strength of our unity comes from our diversity!