

Bid Opening On Culvert Construction

Bids for the repair of an old concrete arch culvert that channels Sausal Creek from East 15th Street some three-fourths of a mile to the Oakland Estuary will be opened by the Alameda County Board of Supervisors on July 20.

Cost of the project is estimated at $285,000, and work is scheduled for completion by mid-December.

Plans call for replacement and repair of 3,882 feet of the bottom slab of the culvert. Beginning with the repair of the special outfall structure at the estuary, the work will continue up Fruitvale Avenue, under the Nimble Freeway, two railroads, East 14th Street and wind up at East 15th Street.

"This is no job for 'sidevalh superintendents,'" said Richard W. Karn, engineer-manager of the Alameda County Flood Control District. "The major operation will be underground and will require special lighting, fresh air supply equipment and tools. The only activity visible above ground will be the ends of the project."

The project is one of several planned for the City of Oakland this year under the Zone 12 project, Karn said.

Go-Ahead On Court Building

SAN LEANDRO — Alameda County Supervisors yesterday okayed an agreement for sharing with San Leandro the cost of acquiring property for a new municipal court and public safety building in the San Leandro Civic Center.

The two jurisdictions will jointly purchase and pay for property at the southeast corner of East 14th Street and California Street at a negotiated price of $169,000. The county's share of the cost is $90,905; the city's $78,095.

The board's affirmative action yesterday followed by 24 hours a similar action by the San Leandro City Council, and clears the way to begin site preparation for the two new structures.

The $240,000 municipal court building will be financed by the county and the $700,000 public safety building will be paid for by the city, with a loan from the State Retirement Service. Supervisor Emanuel P. Razelo disapproved action of the board majority in approving the purchase. He has voted consistently against a new court in San Leandro, favoring construction of the entire county-wide municipal court system.

Three-Way Agreement On Signal

A three-way agreement for installation of a $21,000 traffic control signal at the intersection of Mission Boulevard and Tamarrack Drive was approved yesterday by the Board of Supervisors.

Sharing the installation cost on a 2-1-1 ratio will be the State Division of Highways, Union City and Alameda County. Union City and Alameda County will each pay $5,500, or approximately one-fourth of the estimated cost, because each has one leg of the four-way intersection in its jurisdiction.

The system includes pedestrian signals for traffic crossing Mission Boulevard as well as vehicle control signals. Pedestrian activated signs direct foot traffic crossing the boulevard. The signals provide an avenue of safety for children walking from their homes in Tamarrack Knolls to school on the right side of the boulevard, according to John D. Murphy noted.

Remapping Protest Forwarded

The Alameda County Board of Supervisors' Conference protest a superior redistricting proposal that split Hayward into two districts has been forwarded by the Board of Supervisors to the County Redistricting Commission.

"We have no further jurisdiction over redistricting," declared Board Chairman John D. Murphy as he ordered the protest resolution passed on to the Commission.

Formed at the last meeting of the Conference and unanimously endorsed by conference members, the resolution urged that no division of supervisory districts be made splitting a city into two districts unless it is determined to be a legal necessity. It also points out that more accurate and appropriate population estimates may be obtained by use of gross tax subvention population estimates than from voter registration.

The resolution strikes at a redistricting proposal framed by Supervisor Robert B. Hannan and recently under consideration by the Commission. Based on population estimates derived from an extension of voter registration figures, the proposal splits Hayward at Jackson Street. The area below Jackson is assigned to Supervisor Hannan, the area above, including Castro Valley, Ashland and San Lorenzo, stays in Hannan's.

"We're asking you this great favor," urged the Rev. Watson, "because this church is very much needed."

"We've gone through quite a struggle getting together what we needed to build this church, and we finally got it paid for. Now, we have to move and start over."

The pastor explained that the new site will cost the congregation $10,000.

CV Slates All-Night Grad Dance

CASTRO VALLEY — Castro Valley High School seniors, Summer '65, are all set to graduate Thursday and then to celebrate by dancing all night.

Mike Scanlon and Bob Kollog, Spartan senior class officials, have announced that the all-night dance which will follow the graduation ceremonies will be held at the Castro Village Bowl, 1501 Village Drive, Castro Valley. The party, which will feature dancing, bowling, a buffet and a coke bar, will start at 11:30 p.m. and will wind up at 7:30 a.m. on Friday.

Open only to Castro Valley High School graduates and their dates, the party will be sponsored by parents of the graduates and the management of the Village Bowl.

The cost is $5 per person.

PROHIBITED — The Board is not able to exercise an independent judgment on the matter. Dist. Atty. Douglas Dunning explained, "because of a constitutional prohibition against using county property on funds to aid any religious group, and another forbidding any gift of public funds."

The alternatives are two, according to Harold Davis, executive director of the county redevelopment agency.

One, the church may elect to attempt to reacquire the church buildings by sealed bid after they are sold to the Redevelopment Agency. But, in this case it runs the risk that the buildings will be bid in by someone else, because the bidding must be open and competitive.

Or, the church may elect to reacquire the buildings by paying the Redevelopment Agency their salvage value.

In either case the Redevelopment Agency will be spared the cost of demolition.
